JAMES HOBBS IS ARRAIGNED ON SERIOUS CHARGE OF MURDER

Rushville Boy is Taken Before Connerville Mayor and Preliminary Hearing Set for Wednesday.

MOTION TO QUASH OVERRULED

Ben Burton, Colored Man Shot by Hobbs During Fight Yesterday Afternoon, Dies.

FOUR HOURS AFTER THE FRAY

Donald Goodson of This City, Who Was Hit by Stray Bullet, May Recover.

James Hobbs, 19 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hobbs, living east of the city, who fired the two shots that resulted in the death of Ben Burton, a Connerville negro, in a row near the show grounds at Connerville yesterday afternoon at three-thirty o'clock, was arraigned in the police court before Mayor Hankins in Connerville this morning about eleven o'clock. He pleaded guilty to the charge of murder which was preferred against him. His attorney filed a motion to quash the affidavit but that was overruled by the mayor. His preliminary hearing was set for Wednesday morning at nine o'clock and he was returned to jail to await it.

It was a bullet from Hobbs's thirty-eight calibre revolver which wounded Donald Goodson of this city, a brief report of which was received here late yesterday afternoon. The news reached this city that Goodson had been fatally shot by the negro, Burton, but that proved to be incorrect. The negro did not carry a gun, according to later news from Connerville.

Goodson, as reported yesterday evening when only a meager account of the shooting could be obtained as it was published forty minutes after the fray, was one of the large crowd of spectators who gathered around the belligerent men. Hobbs, it is said, fired three bullets, two of them taking effect in the negro's breast, and one in Goodson's breast. It was first reported here that he was shot in the head.

Immediately after the shooting, Goodson was hurried to Dr. Mount's office in Connerville where physicians probed for the bullet. They were unable to locate it and the boy was brought to this city on an I. & C. car, arriving here shortly after four o'clock. He was taken to his home at 319 North Main street and Dr. W. S. Coleman was called. Goodson was accompanied here by Ed Lewis, chief of the Connerville police force.

Dr. Coleman said today that he expected Goodson would recover. Of course there is danger of blood poisoning complications as the bullet is still in the boy's body. It entered his body just above the chest cavity on the left side and barely missed puncturing his lung and heart. Had it been one inch lower or possibly two, he would have been killed almost instantly.

Goodson suffered much pain last night and it was necessary for the physician to administer hypodermics to lessen his suffering. This morning he was improved but still suffering some pain in his back near the shoulder blade where it is believed the bullet has lodged. If it is found, after the boy has regained his strength, that the bullet will not injure him in any way, no effort will be made to remove it.

The most authentic report of the shooting is to the effect that Hobbs shot in self defense after he was attacked by three negroes, Ben Burton, who died at eight o'clock last night, McKinley Burton, a brother, and Levi Johnson. It seems that the colored men started the trouble. While here yesterday evening, Chief of Police Ed Lewis of Connerville said that he understood that Hobbs shot to defend himself.

Ed Amos, who accompanied Donald Goodson to Connerville yesterday afternoon to attend the circus there, says that the three negroes attacked Hobbs. It is said that they jostled the local boy in the crowd, that he resented it and that one of the negroes struck him. It is also reported here that Ben Burton drew a knife and lunged at Hobbs, knocking him down. An eye witness to the fight says that Hobbs was on the ground and one of the negroes was on top of him, when Hobbs shot.

Burton was hurriedly taken to the Fayette sanitorium in Connerville but from the first little hope was entertained for his recovery. One bullet took effect on the left side just above the nipple and the other ranged higher up on the same side.

That Burton will be freed, perhaps not until after he has had a trial, is the assertion of many local people who have heard the details of the case. The other two negroes in the fight are held by the Connerville police.

Hobbs has been employed in this city for some time. All last winter he worked at a local furniture factory and made many friends there. Last summer he worked with the street construction gang. One day he had an altercation with a negro named Hickman, who since has been sent to the penitentiary, according to the word received here, and was badly beaten up. It is said that Hobbs has asserted since that time that he would never take anything off of a colored man again as he would get rid of him before he could touch him.

Roy H. Jones, chairman of the special committee appointed at the last meeting to go before the council to see what arrangements could be made to obtain water for sprinkling the streets in the business district, reported that the committee has accomplished the purpose for which it had been appointed. He reported that the city council had agreed to furnish water for sprinkling for ten cents a thousand gallons which is just half the price which they first asked. G. P. Hunt moved that the report be accepted and that the committee be continued to make further arrangements for sprinkling. This was passed.

Roy Jones said that it would be necessary for the merchants to either buy a sprinkler or rent the one which the city owns as it is the only available one in the city. The committee was instructed to see if it would not be possible to reach an agreement with the city.

"Big Wednesday," as usual, came up for its share of the discussion. It was suggested that the next bargain day be held during the week between the chautauqua and the fair. It was later moved, and the motion was passed, that the next "Big Wednesday" not be held until after the fair.

The names of the business men who refused to assist in defraying the expenses of the last day were read by the secretary. It was suggested by Russel Casady that the expense be divided among the business men, according to the direct benefit received. He said that his firm was willing to pay more for the bargain, as he believes it is a great help to Rushville and several business men agreed with him. Several speeches were made in which the bargain day was praised to the heavens and hopes were expressed that it could be continued.

Fletcher Conway was arrested today shortly afternoon by policeman Wolters, charged with being drunk. Conway was found in the court house yard and was so near all in that the officer had to almost carry him to jail. He will probably be tried in the morning.

LAY BILL FROM CITY ON TABLE

Merchants In Regular Session Dispose of Accounts For $95 Presented For Work on Lights.

WIND MAY BLOW IT OFF

Sprinkling Question Comes up For Discussion and Tentative Plans Are Made.

It was almost nine o'clock before the members of the Rushville Retail Merchants Association convened in their regular meeting in the court house last evening. The delay was due to the fact that no presiding officer appeared. Finally the meeting was called to order. Secretary Will O. Feudner and F. E. Wolcott was called to the chair to preside. Little of importance was transacted with the exception of the disposal of the bill presented by the city recently for wiring the pedestal lights and splicing four of them.

That was the first matter taken up by the merchants. G. P. Hunt arose to speak and it was moved immediately that he pay the bill due to the fact that he was so enthusiastically in favor of them. He, of course, raised an objection. He said that there was no money in the light fund to pay the bill and moved that it be laid on the table for future reference. It was suggested that a good strong wind might come along and blow it off. The motion was passed unanimously.

PROGRAMS WILL START SUNDAY

Opening Day of Eighth Annual Chautauqua Offers Two Lectures and Musical Preludes.

APOLLO CONCERT COMPANY

Edward Amherst Ott Will Give His Best Lecture, "Sour Grapes" in Afternoon—Course Lecturers.

Just one more day and the people of Rushville and Rush county will begin to enjoy nine days of recreation and pleasure which the eighth annual Rush county chautauqua will afford. The first day's program will be one of the best which this year's assembly will offer. Edward Amherst Ott will be the lecturer at both the afternoon and evening programs of the opening day. Apollo Concert Company and Bell Ringers come Sunday for a three days' engagement during which time it will give the preludes to all of the programs and will give the whole program Monday evening.

Edward Ott is conceded to be one of the foremost lecturers on the platform today. His magnetic personality and his wonderful flow of oratory has held monster audiences spellbound during lectures on many platforms and in various places. His lecture on the subject, "Sour Grapes" which he will give here Sunday evening, is considered his best effort. He has delivered it eleven hundred times and twenty-five thousand copies of it have been sold, so good is the thought and so well expressed is it.

The afternoon lecture, "Will Your Dreams Come True" is a highly inspirational address. He has had a great career as is evidenced by the position which he now holds in the Lyceum world. He brings deep inspiring thoughts in his addresses which lead people on to better things in life and which will lead his auditors to a higher plane, a greater, more productive and better life. His lectures are re-inforced by his wonderful personality and his masterful eloquence.

The Apollo Concert company is a company of strictly high class entertainers, capable of putting on a program of great variety and superior quality.

A careful consideration of the personnel of the company, their long and successful concert experience, the instrumentation (which includes legitimate instruments only, in solos and splendid ensemble work, the vocal selections, readings, etc., will convince the thoughtful buyer that the Apollo Quintette and Bell Ringers will attract large audiences and please them greatly. The press of many of the best lyceum cities of this country uniformly attest the splendid satisfaction given by their entertainment to crowded houses.

Arthur Wells is a cultured musician and worthy of a place among professionals of highest degree, a splendid banjo soloist and saxaphone player, an experienced teacher of banjo, mandolin and guitar, and has had ten full years experience in lyceum concert work.

G. E. Holmes has had many years of successful concert experience as

HENLEY ESTABLISHES CAMP

Indianapolis Jurist Opens Summer Home on Old Flatrock.

According to his annual custom, Judge William J. Henley, of Indianapolis, formerly of this place and later of Chicago, established his camp along Flatrock below Moscow today. Mr. Henley has a large supply of camp paraphanalia which he stores in a cement house during the winter and which provides all of the conveniences of a summer home. Mr. Henley is regarded as a Hale and hearty fellow, well met for he entertains his Rushville friends in a royal manner while in camp.

AUTO DASHED INTO BARB WIRE FENCE

Rushville People Escaped Injury Yesterday in Accident South of Greensburg.

WERE GOING TO OSGOOD FAIR

While on the way to Osgood yesterday morning, to attend the fair, an automobile belonging to George Reeve was considerably damaged by crashing into a barb wire fence about two miles south of Greensburg. The machine contained Mrs. William Smiley, Mrs. Nora Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Williams and daughter, and was driven by Joshua Brown, an employee at the Reeve garage. The occupants of the car escaped injury.

The accident was caused by the steering knuckle breaking. All control of the machine was lost and it dashed to the side of the road, going through the fence, into an adjoining field. The radiator was smashed and the windshield was broken, putting the auto out of commission until the necessary repairs could be made.

SHAFT LOOSENS; RUNAWAY RESULTS

Dayton Hungerford and Son Calvin Are Thrown Out While Driving Down Steep Hill.

IN LIMELIGHT MUCH LATELY

Calvin Hungerford, who has been in the limelight more or less since last Friday, when he suddenly disappeared from his home north of Moscow, leaving a note to his wife, which she classifies as a wicked and infamous one, and in which he declared he would never return, was, together with his father, Dayton Hungerford of Milroy, hurt in a runaway yesterday evening. He and his father were driving down a hill northeast of Moscow when a bolt in the shafts worked loose and allowed them to fall down on the horses' heels. The animal frightened and ran away, throwing the two men into the road. They were both severely hurt but no serious results are anticipated. The accident occurred on a steep hill near Wilbur Warner's farm while the two men were on the way to Milroy from the farm on which Calvin Hungerford's brother, Jesse lives.

In an opinion to Charles A. Greathouse, State superintendent of public instruction, the attorney-general held an incorporated town may issue bonds for proper school purposes to 2 per cent of the total taxables of the town. The query was based on a letter from August J. Reifel of Brookville.

OLD FAVORITE BRINGS CROWD

John Robinson's 10 Combined Shows Give Excellent Afternoon Performance and Parade.

PEOPLE GATHER EARLY IN DAY

Largest Crowd in Many Months Visits Rushville—Complete Program For Tonight.

John Robinson's circus is making something like its twenty-fifth visit to Rushville today and appears to be "bigger and better" than ever. The trains bearing the tents, wagons, animals and performers reached here early this morning and a crowd of small boys were on hand to watch the unloading. Before nine o'clock the "main top" dressing tents and the dining room were in place and everything was ready for the two performances this afternoon and to-night.

The first public business was the parade, without which no circus is complete. Preparations had been going on while the tented city was rising and by 10 o'clock everything was in readiness for the order to start.

The sidewalks were lined with men, women and children and all took a lively interest in the spectacle. There were many new features in the turnout and it was generally pronounced to be well up to the promises of its press agents. Four bands furnished the necessary brass accompaniment. The usual calliope, formerly bringing up the rear, was moved a few paces forward in the line. A band composed entirely of colored musicians produced a good quality of music. There was a large exhibit of the menagerie, including a cage containing ten polar bears. The horses were uniformly well groomed and proved an attractive feature of the parade. The Wild West was represented by Indians, Cossacks, cowboys and riders from the east, while a group of equestriennes supplied the feminine feature.

After the parade a series of free attractions were given in front of the big tent. The crowds began to move toward the grounds as soon as the parade was over and spent the time before the show began in visiting the side show, the Indian settlement and the congress of nations.

At one o'clock the ticket office was opened for the afternoon performance and from then on there was a steady stream of spectators taking in the menagerie and the promenade band concert which preceded the opening act. The afternoon attendance was large and the evening crowd promises to tax the capacity of the big tent.

The circus detectives under the charge of William Davis were everywhere and saw to it that nothing occurred.

A small newspaper in Indiana recently received a post card asking for a discontinuance of the paper. It was remarkable for its frankness and brevity. It read: "We do not want the paper any more as pa is dead."

CIVIL WAR VETERAN DIES.

William Mitchell, eighty-four years of age, died Tuesday about noon at his home in Knightstown. He had lived in this home for sixty years. A brief service was held there at two o'clock Thursday afternoon. The interment was in the Knightstown cemetery. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Mont Porter and Mrs. Nellie OMalia, both living in Knightstown.

GRAY HAIR MAKES YOU LOOK OLD

A Simple Remedy Brings Back the Natural Color—Dandruff Quickly Removed.

How often one hears the expression, "She is gray and beginning to look old." It is true that gray hair usually denotes age and is always associated with age. You never hear one referred to as having gray hair and looking young.

The hair is generally the index of age. If your hair is gray, you can't blame your friends for referring to you as looking old. You can't retain a youthful appearance if you allow your hair to grow gray. Many persons of middle age jeopardize their future simply by allowing the gray hair to become manifest. If your hair has become faded or gray, try Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation which a chemist by the name of Wyeth devised a few years ago. It is simple, inexpensive and practical, and will banish the gray hairs in a few days. It is also guaranteed to remove dandruff and promote the growth of the hair.

It is a pleasant dressing for the hair, and after using it a few days itching and dryness of the scalp entirely disappear.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special Agents, Hargrove and Mullin Druggists, Rushville, Indiana.

During the months of July and August I shall not make my usual visits to Rushville. Those wishing to see me or communicate with me in regard to

THE OBJECT IS TO AVERT WAR

Three Leading Nations Bound to Arbitration.

SIGNAL TRIUMPH FOR TAFT

With England, France and America Committed to Peaceful Settlement of Questions of National Honor, Negotiations Are Now Under Way For Adoption of Similar Treaties With Germany, Italy and the Netherlands.

Washington, Aug. 4.—A large picture in oil of M. Jules Cambon, former ambassador to this country from France, signing the protocol which ended the Spanish-American war, hangs on the wall of President Taft's study in the White House. Beside the French ambassador, looking out from the frame with care-worn face stands the figure of President McKinley.

Opposite this impressive picture yesterday was standing another president, this one smiling in life, his hand resting on a table surrounded by representatives of three great powers of the world.

The dead canvas on the wall told its story of war ended; the scene being enacted at the opposite side of the room marked the formal pledging by France, Great Britain and the United States of their faith in the substitution of arbitration for bloodshed in the settlement of all international disputes. To the twenty persons who had gathered in the room to see the signing of the most important conventions between the United States and England and the United States and France, the contrast between the living and the dead and the new and the old, presented a scene not to be soon forgotten.

Inaugurates New Era.

The two treaties—the first of the kind ever entered into between two nations of the world—were signed shortly after 3 o'clock. The informality and simplicity of the ceremony added to its impressiveness. Copies of the treaties were lying on the president's study table as Mr. Taft and Secretary Knox and the representatives of the foreign governments entered the room. Secretary Knox and the Right Honorable James Bryce, ambassador from England, seated themselves on opposite sides of the table. President Taft stood on Mr. Knox's right and near him were Viscount De Saint Phalle, vice consul of the French government at New York, and Second Secretary Over of the French embassy, who witnessed the signatures of their government. Chandler Anderson, counsellor of the state department, and Sidney Smith of the diplomatic bureau were also in the group about the table, while ranged about the room were a dozen or more reporters.

Secretary Knox had provided a special pen for the occasion, but Mr. Bryce picked up one at random and, finding its point not to his liking, reached for another. Then he bent over the treaty, and Secretary Knox followed his example. There was no other sound in the room except the pens' scratch over the parchment. Mr. Bryce laid his pen down first, nodded in his quaint way and extended his hand to the president. Mr. Taft grasped it heartily.

Binds Us to France.

Mr. Knox then laid aside the copy of the Anglo-American treaty and nodded to Viscount De Saint Phalle.

The latter moved up closer to the desk and witnessed the signature as Mr. Knox's pen scrawled over the second document. Again a broad smile appeared on Mr. Taft's face and he turned toward the French representative. This time the president was gratulated with an impressive bow. Jean Jules Jusserand, French ambassador to the United States, now in Paris, the first diplomat to accept President Taft's suggestions that all quarrels between nations could be arbitrated, had signed the convention in that city at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, or 9 a.m., Washington time.

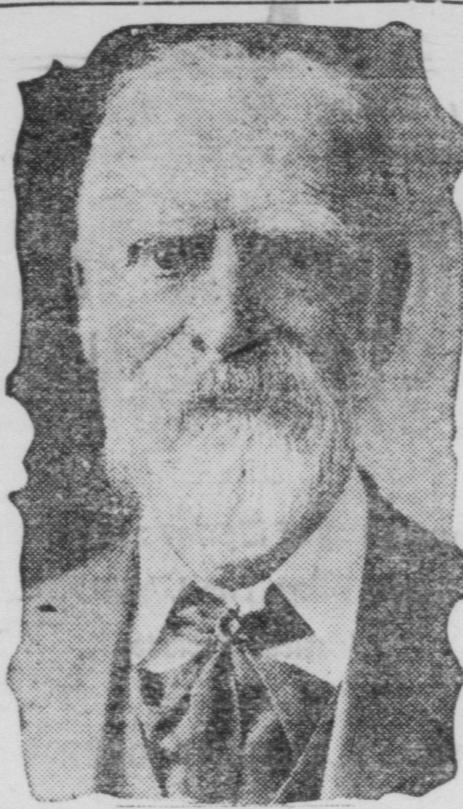

The photographers were on hand, a whole squad of them. The little international party at the table devoted a few minutes to them. The battery of cameras clicked the pictures, after the secretary and Mr. Bryce had been bidden to adopt suitable poses, pens in hands.

Mr. Taft immediately after the signing of the treaties affixed his signature to the messages of transmittal which completed arrangements for sending the pact to the senate. This was done today, and Mr. Knox asked that the senate remove the ban of secrecy usually imposed upon treaties submitted to it.

These treaties provide for the arbitration of disputes, including questions of national honor and vital interest, which have hitherto always been excepted in arbitration treaties. In effect the treaties seek to avert war by interposing diplomatic machinery which will insure a delay of one year or more and give the threatened combatants time to cool off and consider questions in sober second thought. The treaties provide a means for giving diplomacy a second chance after it has failed in the first instance to settle any dispute. President Taft himself has declared that the treaties will depend for their

LINDLEY FACES MURDER CHARGE

Divorced Husband of Whitecap Victim Arrested.

EVIDENCE OF DYING WOMAN

Before Her Death Mrs. Retta Coombs, Who Was Shot in a Whitecap Raid Upon Her Home, Declared That She Recognized Her Divorced Husband in Party—Lindley Denies Charge, Declaring He Can Prove an Alibi.

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 4.—William Lindley, one of the men who is alleged to have been in the gang of whitecaps who attacked the home of Mrs. Rettie Coombs in Huff township, Spencer county, and shot the woman, was arrested near Grandview. Sheriff Sohn and a posse had been looking for Lindley since Saturday night. Lindley was taken to Rockport, where a charge of murder has been placed against him.

Mrs. Coombs died from her wounds. Before her death she told her father, George Coombs, and the attending physician that she recognized both Lindley and Talbert in the gang. Lindley, the divorced husband of the dead woman, says at the time of the attack was made on her he was in a barn between Troy and his home.

BUYS DAM SITE

Government Will Begin Work Near Evansville This Year.

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 4.—Congressman John W. Boehne of this city has received word from the war department that the site for the government dam across the Ohio river twelve miles below here, has been purchased and work on the dam will start some time this year. Several of the land owners demanded high prices and this delayed the deal. The dam will be one of the series that the government is now building from Pittsburg, Pa., to Cairo, Ill. It will cost about $1,500,000 and a year will be required to build it.

Five Concerns in Contest.

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 4.—St. Joseph county's voting machine contest, which has attracted attention through a suit in court involving the Indiana voting machine commission and numerous incidents here, has been formally opened. The display will continue with demonstrations daily until next Tuesday, when the county commissioners will receive sealed bids for fifty machines. The estimated cost is $40,000. Five concerns are contesting for the contract.

He Got Free Ride.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., Aug. 4.—Dan McAtee, Indianapolis, as he gave his name, was thought to be killed when the engineer on a Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern fast freight train saw him disappear in front of the engine. The train was brought to a stop and the crew began to search for the body. McAtee was found perched on the pilot. He said he wanted to go to the Osgood fair. So they took him.

Boy Stepped on Live Wire.

Bedford, Ind., Aug. 4.—Edgar McOscar, aged thirteen, came in contact with a live wire while entering an alley in the business district of the city, and was killed. It proved to be a telephone wire that had broken from a pole and in its fall to the ground had crossed the electric light wire, which carried 2,000 volts.

Best Paid Police in State.

Gary, Ind., Aug. 4.—Salaries of all police officers below the rank of captain will be raised by the city council, thus making the Gary force the highest paid in the state. Sergeants will be advanced from $100 to $110; patrolmen, first grade, from $75 to $85; patrolmen, second grade, $85 to $100.

Crying as He Plodded On.

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 4.—John Wachter, aged nine, is wandering about somewhere in northern Indiana, and charges of cruelty against his mother have been made to the police. Farmers living west of the city reported having seen the boy pass their homes, crying as he plodded.

Neck Broken by Fall.

Lafayette, Ind., Aug. 4.—Samuel W. Marlow, aged thirty-three, of Lafayette, engineer on the Monon railroad, fell into a turntable pit at South Hammond, the northern terminal of the railroad, and his neck was broken. He was dead when he was taken from the hole.

Highwaymen in Randolph.

Union City, Ind., Aug. 4.—Two masked highwaymen held up Lloyd Morgan, member of the city fire department, on a lonely road three miles north of this city, and took his money and a watch. This is the third holdup at this spot in the last year.

Jumped Off in Front of Train.

Lafayette, Ind., Aug. 4.—Fay Pitts, an eighteen-year-old boy, was struck by a Monon passenger train at Romney, south of here, and probably fatally hurt. He had been riding on a freight train and jumped off in front of the passenger train.

HAYTI IS IN FOR MORE TROUBLE

Rival Forces Contending for Supremacy.

THE PRESIDENT A FUGITIVE

Facing Odds Against Which He Could Only Hopelessly Contend, Antoine Simon Sought Refuge on Board an American Schooner, Leaving His Capital to Be Fought For by Political Rivals.

Port Au Prince, Aug. 4.—As the commander of the Haytien gunboat 17 Decembre refused to permit on board of that vessel, President Simon, who took a hurried leave of his country, is now on board the American schooner Bradford C. French. He is awaiting a steamer, Commander Oman, in command of the American naval forces, has placed a guard on the French in order to protect the fleeing president and his family.

The capital of the black republic is now occupied by two rival revolutionary forces, one commanded by General Cincinnati Leconte, who was minister of the interior, and the other by General Antenor Firmin, who was the Haytien minister to the court of St. James.

Some of the revolutionary troops came into the city and started to pillage and several were shot, as the commanders had given their word to the diplomatic corps that the capital would not be sacked.

The safety of the city is in the hands of a public safety committee composed of Leontists, Firmists and neutrals, and they have had some work to do. A mob attacked the American schooner John Paul, made fast to a pier, believing that political refugees were on board. The mob was dispersed by the committee.

No armed forces have been landed by any of the five United States war vessels in Haytien waters, though the German cruiser Premer landed a party of forty marines. Simon is now reported to be going to Kingston, Jamaica.

Sore Feet Cured In One Night for 10c

May sound "big," but try it! Soak the feet well in hot water, and while damp, rub in Plex "the quick-healing salve." In the morning notice the results. A few such treatments will overcome the worst cases of sore, sweaty, aching feet, and a few more will remove the corns and bunions.

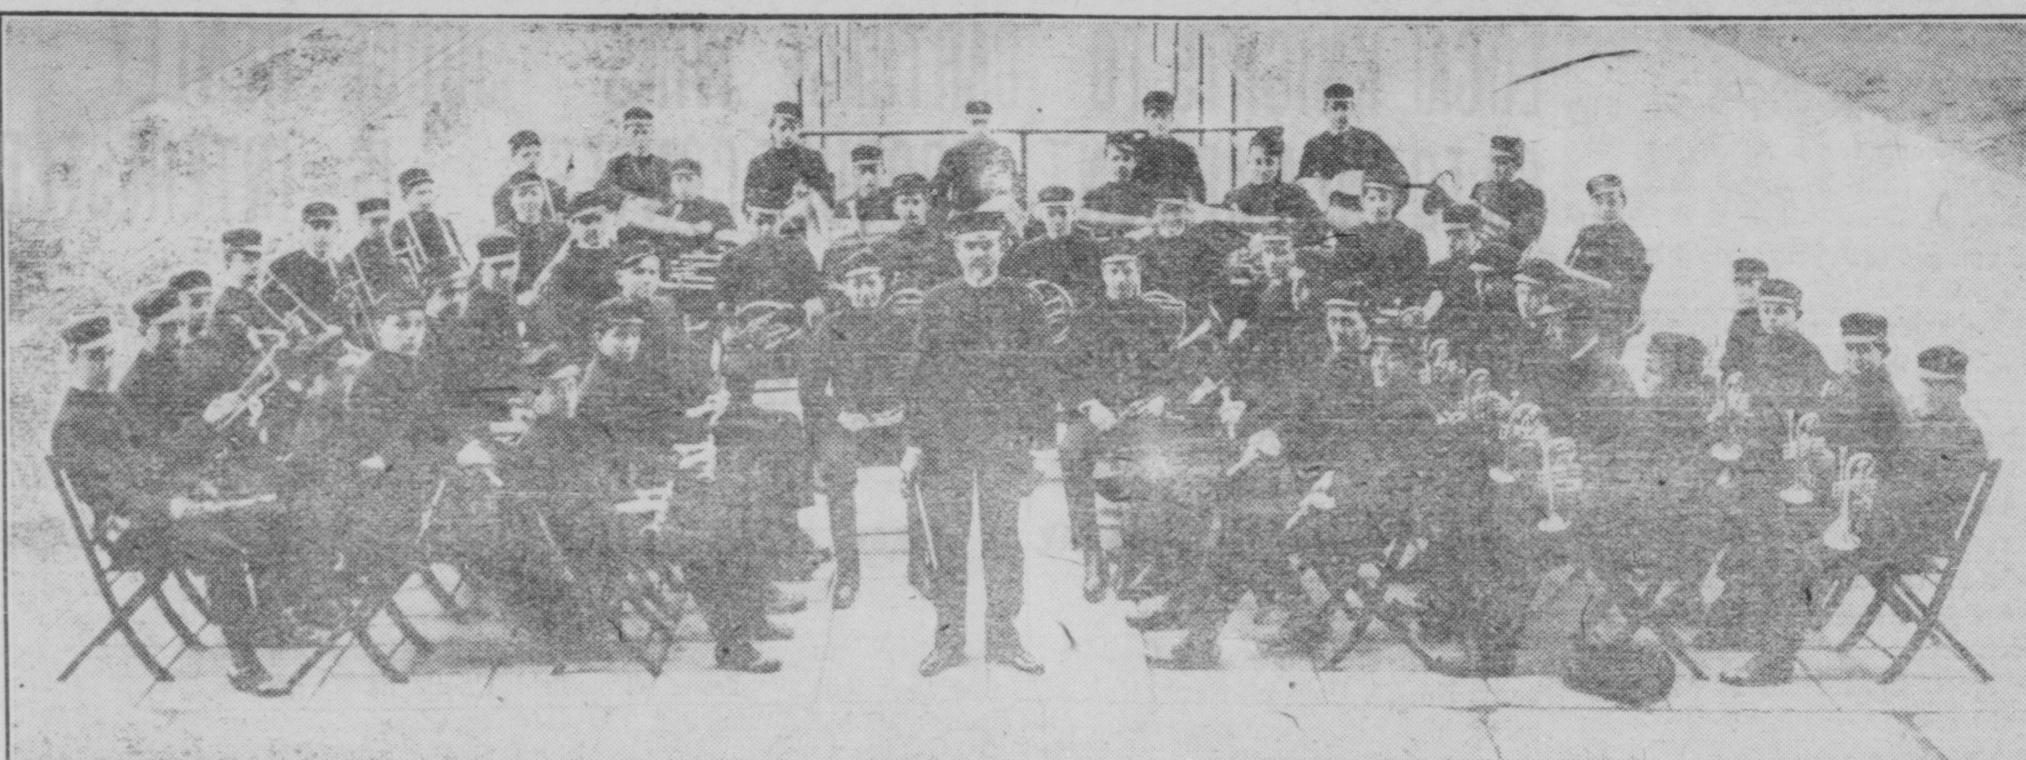

Plex is a wonder-working, penetrating ointment, and a big box of it costs only 10 cents. It destroys germs, cleans and heals like magic. A hundred uses in every home.

One application cures Itching piles. Two or three applications produce wonderful results in eczema, dandruff or any skin disease. Fine for catarrh. Unequalled for stiff, sore hands or muscles. Best household salve for cuts, burns, etc.

Don't smile at Plex because it only costs 10 cents because this 10 cent remedy gives better, quicker results than any expensive remedy you ever used. Your druggist has Plex or can easily get it for you.

DOING THEIR DUTY

Scenes of Rushville Readers are Learning the Duty of the Kidneys.

To filter the blood is the kidneys' duty.

When they fail to do this the kidneys are sick.

Backache and many kidney ills follow;

Help the kidneys do their work. Doan's Kidney Pills build up weak kidneys.

Rushville people endorse our claim.

Mason Maxey, 836 West Third street, Rushville, Ind., says: "I know that Doan's Kidney Pills are a kidney remedy of great merit and I therefore hold them in high esteem.

When I procured my first box of Doan's Kidney Pills at F. B. Johnson & Co.'s Drug Store, three years ago, I was badly in need of a remedy that would relieve me of the pains in my back. I found Doan's Kidney Pills to be a reliable preparation for that purpose and by the time I had finished the contents of two boxes, the pain had disappeared. I publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills at the time and the lapse of three years has not changed my opinion of them. I willingly confirm all I said in my original statement."

LUMBAGO

"Rheumatic Pains in the Loins and the Small of the Back."

Thus is described one of the most annoying, tho' not necessarily dangerous, forms of Rheumatism, by a great authority. He might have added, and such addition would have increased the value of his definition of Lumbago ten-fold, that it can be eradicated from the system by the use of SULFOSOL—sulphur in solution. Whenever you feel those terrible Lumbar pains coming on take SULFOSOL quickly and faithfully. It will not only relieve the pains as promptly as any remedy can do so with safety, but it will eradicate the rheumatic tendency which is a constant menace to the comfort and activities of an otherwise normally well person.

SULFOSOL is the vitalizer of the blood, expeller of uric acid and other blood, expeller of uric acid and other blood taints and conqueror of Rheumatism and Gout. Get it of your nearest Druggist or write to the Sulfosol Company, 72 Trinity Place, New York, for a free book on Rheumatism and Blood Disease and the successful use of SULFOSOL in their treatment.

Sulfosol Soap contains Sulphur to Soothe Form. Nothing better for the complexion.

BRANCHES IN ALL THE PRINCIPAL CITIES

Good citizenship is a fruitful subject for the Chautauqua orator. It comes in handy also at church and education meetings. Champ Clark Speaker of the House, hit the bad citizens a hard rap in his speech before the teachers at Atlantic City. He said that the hoodlum who always voted was better than the goody-goody man who refused to vote. We hear much of this kind of stuff these days. But do the people generally care? Are they alive to their best interest? Do they elect the best men to do public business? Do they not allow loafers, gamblers and deadbeats to have too much voice in the political game? There are practical questions that the "good citizen" should consider.

Marshall Measured.

If Governor Marshall of Indiana is correctly reported, his sense of the fitness of things is acute, says the New York Post. The laying of the corner stone of a new court house provided him with an occasion yesterday for taking an attitude toward the judiciary that is happily rare even among presidential candidates. Of what he had to say of the double usurpation of the courts of his own state, those who heard him are best fitted to judge. Others will want particulars before making up their minds as to the refusal of judicial bodies in Indiana to obey the law providing that license shall be granted for the sale of intoxicants, and as to their assumption of authority to write commands for the Legislature. But it is difficult to conceive of qualifying expressions which can have lightened the sinister suggestion of such a demand as "The rule of reason, is a fine thing, but whose reason is it?" The crowd we are informed, "looked upon the decisions of the courts sometimes as humorous, sometimes as corrupt." Did the Governor mean that the people in general divide judicial decisions into these two classes, and did he think that the bulk of them are rightly to be so classified? If one wants to agitate for legislative supremacy, with a diminution of the judicial power as laid down in the constitution, involving a recasting of our political system which shall get rid of those nameless "special privileges in courts" which Harry the Governor's son, well and good. Let him so agitate. But that is a very different thing from uttering wild and whirling words which are adapted to nothing except fostering a vague and pernicious discontent.

Don't Damn Your Town.

Any city or town is just what the men who live in it make it.

The man who damns his town is the most damnable thing in it.

In nearly every town you may hear some residents say: "Aw, this ain't nothin' but an overgrown country village!" The residents of any town who makes such a statement wears whiskers and boots at heart.

Of course, if your town isn't sporty enough for you, why you can move; that isn't the town's fault, and it wouldn't be much loss to the town.

If you get to sporty, you'll have to move, anyhow.

It isn't the sports that make a town; it's the jays.

Nearly every man in art, science, literature, industry and commerce here in America today either is or has been a jay.

Edison, who gave the light for the sports on the Gay White way, was a jay—a jay telegraph operator—and is a jay yet.

John D. Rockefeller is content to remain a jay.

Russel Sage, who got rich loaning money to sports, was the jayest of jays.

It is a safe rule that the jay who runs his own business gets further along and is worth far more to any town than the sport who tries to run other people's business.

In the far west there are men in mercantile, manufacturing and all other pursuits who are saying: "If we only were in Chicago we could do or get so and so." In Chicago they are saying: "If we were only in New York." In New York the same sort are wishing for advantages of London or Paris.

Chicago, New York, London and Paris are all the results of their citizens taking the conditions and materials at hand and doing the best they could with them—just as we all can do.

So there you are. Any place is just what the people who live in it make it.

A town is seldom the result of virgin natural conditions. In any event it was man who saw the natural advantages, and frequently it was some one individual. Many a town has been practically made by one man; but he was a booster, not a knocker.

The first process in the improvement of any town is to get rid of the people who are damning it.

Editorialettes.

Well, no use gettin' peevish about it. The fellow's got a right to enjoy the show even if he does say he is going "just to take the children."

Nor do the people who merely "come to the parade" buy the hay that feeds the elephant.

That there is something in this safe and sane fourth business is proved by the number of quiet weddings we have been having.

At Cincinnati they arrested a man for stealing a kiss. That's all right but think of them doing that in Cincinnati.

As usual the small boys worked for the tickets they didn't get.

Even the camels got a hump on themselves when they saw our new street lights.

And the wagons didn't cut up Second and Main streets as they used to either.

One excited woman who was watching the show unload, talked so fast and so much she got sidetracked on her own switch—which she afterward admitted cost her $6.

LOCAL KNIGHTS TO GO TO ENCAMPMENT

Ivy Company No. 35, U. R. K. of P. Hopes to Have Full Company in Parade at Lafayette Tuesday.

MANY PLAN TO GO SUNDAY

Many of the members of Ivy Company, No. 35, Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias will attend the annual encampment of the Indiana brigade of the Uniform Rank in Lafayette next week. A few members of the local company will leave Sunday morning over the Indianapolis and Cincinnati Traction line, followed by a rear guard Monday evening of a much larger representation.

It is urged that as many members as possible go as the local company desires to make as good a showing as possible in the annual parade which will be held Tuesday. It is hoped that a full company from Rushville will be in line. The largest crowd will go Monday evening, when it is desired by the local officials that most of the members go. The fare for the round trip is only $2.80.

APPRaisalMENT
NOT INCREASED

County Auditor Stone Receives Word From State Tax Board That No Change Will be Made.

INCREASE IS 4.8 PER CENT

Jesse Stone, county auditor, received word this morning from the State board of tax commissioners that the appraisement of Rush county real estate and improvements would not be increased. It was expected that the State board would raise the valuation made by the various township assessors.

Early in the year the word was sent around that a ten per cent. increase over the appraised value of four years ago, when the last appraisement of real estate and improvements was taken, should be made by the assessors this year. The local officials instructed the assessor not to make over a five percent increase. After the board of review had gone over the appraisement of the property in the various townships, it was found that the increase would not average five per cent. and the appraisements of Walker township were increased three per cent. Then it was found that the increase was 4.8 per cent. for the county. The average value of an acre of land, together with the improvements, was found to be $46.85. The local officials were summoned before the State Board to give reasons why the increase should not be ten per cent.

A JEWISH HOLIDAY.

Jewish people observed Tishe B'ab, Jewish fast day yesterday. It is the anniversary of three great national catastrophes and the end of Israel as a nation. It is known as Tishe B'ab, or the Ninth Day of the Month of Ab, and marks the anniversary of the destruction of the temple and of Jerusalem under Nebuchadnezzar by the Chaldeans in 586 B. C.

C. H. & D. EXEMPT.

The Railroad Commission has issued an order exempting the C. H. & D. from installing a block signal system on its line west of Indianapolis and on the Ft. Wayne division because the business of the roads do not justify the outlay.

TO PUT ON NEW CAR.

Within the next three weeks the company controlling the Shelbyville-Nineveh Auto Traction Company will put another car on the road and new territory will be covered. The line to be opened up will be from Shelbyville to Gowdy, Rush county, by way of Blue Ridge.

CARTHAGE WINS
CROQUET CONTEST

"Brings Home Bacon" From Greenfield and is Defeated in One Game by Rain.

A LARGE CROWD ATTENDS

Carthage croquet players "brought home the bacon" from Greenfield Wednesday night, having defeated the players of that place in one game and in a fair way to corral another, says the Carthage Citizen.

Van Hood and Howard E. Henley won the first game, and R. C. Hill and Herbie Beler were seven arches in the lead in the 2d game when stopped by rain.

The games were played near the residences of Lawyer and Mrs. Cook, at whose home all the party were royally entertained. Those who were there were Mr. and Mrs. Van Hood, Mr. and Mrs. Oren Beler, son Herbie and Miss Nelle Parish, Mrs. Russell Phelps, R. C. Hill and son Earl, J. C. Cox, S. O. McCarty and Floyd Miner. All are appreciative of the treatment they received.

POPULATION MARK
MAY MOVE AROUND

Census Department Intimates That Spot Near Unionville is Not Real Center of Population.

CHANGE MAY BE MADE YET

The spot near Unionville, Monroe county, now marked by monuments, rattlesnakes and other things to signify that it is the exact center of population of the United States may not be able to bask in the sunshine of its own glory much longer. This exact center may not be the center after all.

A dispatch from Washington says the census department has gone over the figures and made another estimate of the true center. The latest calculations are regarded as absolutely correct, while those made originally may deviate from the center a few miles. The department is locating the exact center and will publish a map showing where the center is located. So far the department officials have refused to say whether the new center will be removed from the spot near Unionville, but the inference is that some change will be made in the location.

CHRISTMAN WON.

Joe Christman won another race yesterday with J. C. Patchen. Christman drove the horse in the 2:14 pace at the Osgood fair and won in straight heats. The best time was 2:14 1/4.

JUDGE HENLEY IS INTERESTED

Former Rushville Attorney Visits New Castle in Interests of Proposed Car Line There.

GIVE OUT NO STATEMENTS

Favorably impressed with New Castle as a growing city and a prosperous community, Judge W. J. Henley, the Rushville attorney and Chicago railroad builder, and Lewis F. Smith of Indianapolis, son-in-law of W. A. Stephenson, the owner of the Honey Bee line, returned to Indianapolis Wednesday evening after spending an afternoon in the city, going over a proposed route for a street railway in New Castle, says the New Castle Courier.

The two promoters did not make any statements as to what recommendations they would make in regard to the building of a line here. They were shown over the route by Frank E. Smith, manager of the Maxwell-Briscoe factory, A. D. Ogborn and Mayor George M. Barnard.

The games were played near the residences of Lawyer and Mrs. Cook, at whose home all the party were royally entertained. Those who were there were Mr. and Mrs. Van Hood, Mr. and Mrs. Oren Beler, son Herbie and Miss Nelle Parish, Mrs. Russell Phelps, R. C. Hill and son Earl, J. C. Cox, S. O. McCarty and Floyd Miner. All are appreciative of the treatment they received.

COUNTY FAIR TIME

Work on Construction of Concrete Arch Over Race in East Second Street Well Under Way.

MORE STREET TO BUILD YET

It is safe to guess that the east road leading to the fair ground will not be completed any before the county fair if by that time. The work of building a concrete arch across the race in East Second street is just now in full swing. It was not started this week and so far the forms for the concrete work have not been finished. The foreman of the job says that the placing of the forms is the most difficult part of the work. After that is completed it will be necessary to lay a hundred feet of brick leading up to the bridge. The grade must be established there also. The work in West Third streets is progressing fast.

Lesson VI.—Third Quarter, For Aug. 6, 1911.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Jer. xxvi, 7-19. Memory Verses, 13, 14—Golden Text, Ps. xxvii, 1—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Jeremiah was a faithful messenger of the Lord God of Israel and coveted only the approval of Him who sent him. He was therefore hated by the false prophets and by all who would not submit to God. The Lord told him that it would be so when He called him to be a prophet and said: "Speak unto them all that I command thee; be not dismayed at their faces. They shall fight against thee, but they shall not prevail against thee, for I am with thee, saith the Lord, to deliver thee" (Jer. 1, 17, 19; xv; 20).

After he had been eighteen years a prophet (compare Jer. 1, 2; II Chron. xxiv, 1) and Jeholakim was now king, his brother Jehonahaz having reigned only three months (II Chron. xxvi, 1-4), the word of the Lord came again to Jeremiah saying, "Speak all the words that I command thee to speak unto them; diminish not a word" (Jer. xxvi, 2). Because of Jeremiah's faithfulness in delivering the Lord's message against the city and the temple the priests and the prophets took him as a prophet and he prophesied as Jeremiah did, and when Jeholakim sought to kill him he fled into Egypt, but the king had him brought back out of Egypt and put to death. The difference in the fate of these two men makes us think of James, the brother of John, whom Herod killed with the sword, and Peter, who was saved from a similar fate by an angel (Acts xii). It is always a gain for a true child of God to die, but it is sometimes better for the people of God on the earth and for sinners who may through them be saved to continue yet awhile here (Phil. 1, 20-26).

Jeremiah was a prophet of the Lord for forty years until Judah was fully carried captive in the days of Zedekiah, and he seems to have had to contend with lying prophets all the way through, to one of whom the Lord told him to say, "This year thou shalt die, because thou hast taught rebellion against the Lord." So he died that same year (chapter xxviii, 15-17). We can always safely leave ourselves in the hands of the Lord, but we cannot do otherwise than believe and obey Him. The illustration of the Rechabites, who obeyed Jonadab, their father, in the matter of drinking no wine, having no vineyards and building no houses, as recorded in chapter xxxv, was a very striking object lesson, and a stinging rebuke to God's disobedient people, but they did not lay it to heart.

In verses 12 to 15 we have Jeremiah's defense, and his only plea is, "A truth the Lord hath sent me unto you to speak all these words in your ears." He did not fail to exhort them to amend their ways and their doings and to obey the voice of the Lord their God, and then he added, do what you please with me, but know that if you kill me you will kill an innocent man.

The princes and the people then took Jeremiah's part against the priests and the prophets because he had spoken in the name of the Lord their God; and they recall the fact that in the days of Hezekiah the Prophet Micah was a faithful witness for the Lord of hosts against Jerusalem, but that Hezekiah, instead of killing him, repented before the Lord, and the Lord kept back the evil which otherwise would have come upon them. Micah told them plainly that they judged for reward, taught for hire, and divined for money, yet professed to lean upon the Lord (Mic. iii, 11). Hezekiah knew this to be all true, and he humbled himself before God and repented.

The last part of our lesson chapter tells of another true man of God who prophesied as Jeremiah did, and when Jeholakim sought to kill him he fled into Egypt, but the king had him brought back out of Egypt and put to death. The difference in the fate of these two men makes us think of James, the brother of John, whom Herod killed with the sword, and Peter, who was saved from a similar fate by an angel (Acts xii). It is always a gain for a true child of God to die, but it is sometimes better for the people of God on the earth and for sinners who may through them be saved to continue yet awhile here (Phil. 1, 20-26).

Jeremiah was a prophet of the Lord for forty years until Judah was fully carried captive in the days of Zedekiah, and he seems to have had to contend with lying prophets all the way through, to one of whom the Lord told him to say, "This year thou shalt die, because thou hast taught rebellion against the Lord." So he died that same year (chapter xxviii, 15-17). We can always safely leave ourselves in the hands of the Lord, but we cannot one passage at least Job answers clearly, definitely and with evident assurance, "I know that my Redeemer liveth . . . and after my skin has been destroyed in my flesh shall I see God." Like a gleam of sunlight between dark clouds comes the expression of deep conviction on the part of the ancient patriarch concerning the future. And what was a personal conviction with Job, Christ has demonstrated to be a certainty. God does care for His own.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 6, 1911.

Topic—Lessons from great lives—VIII. Job—Job vi, 1-11; XII, 1-6. (Consecration meeting.) Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

The book of Job has been called a philosophical discussion of the problem of human suffering. The discussion revolves around the life of a real historic character, but undoubtedly the purpose is didactic and not simply the recording of historical facts. It is clearly intended to deal with moral and religious problems and their solution—the problems of prosperity and adversity, the suffering of the righteous, the extent of God's interest in man, the possibility of a future life, the ability of man to know God—great and interesting problems and wisely discussed, and yet after all is said and done the conclusion as summed up in the words of Elihu seems to be that it is impossible for man "by searching to find out God." God's ways are not our ways. He "moves in a mysterious way, His wonders to perform," and we must trust Him regardless of the fact that we cannot always understand the purposes of His dealings with us.

The life of Job, however, still teaches many comforting and helpful lessons. Let us note the following:

1. The faithfulness of Job under testing. The first question discussed is that of the possibility of disinterested goodness. Satan raises the question when he asks, "Does Job serve God for naught?" To prove that a man may love Him and delight in His service God puts Job to severe tests. He is tried and tested in every possible way. He suffers great misfortunes, deep bereavements, personal affliction, his wife mocks him, his friends misunderstand him. Yet he remains faithful to God. Job stood the test and thus demonstrated the possibility of disinterested righteousness. Such righteousness is the more possible today through the possession of the Spirit and the example of Christ, who was "tried in all points as we are, yet without sin." Through love to God we should serve Him regardless of the fact that it may seem to cost us sacrifice and suffering. If tested let us, like Job, still remain faithful and true to God. "Though He slay me, yet will I trust Him."

2. The purpose of God in the suffering of the righteous. Why do the righteous suffer? Why did Job suffer? His friends declared that his sufferings were proof of the fact that he was not righteous. They took the usual position of the ancient Jews that temporal prosperity is an evidence of righteousness, while temporal adversity is a sure proof of unrighteousness. But Job knew that this was not true, that he was not afflicted because of his sins, yet he is almost driven to despair and comes near to the point of questioning the justice of God, as countless others have done under similar circumstances. The final answer given is that "God sends calamities on good men by way of chastisement, not of punishment; in love, not in anger; to purify and strengthen them, to purge out faults, to save from the pit." This is undoubtedly the teaching of the book of Job upon this question, and it accords with that of the entire word of God upon the same subject, and through his afflictions Job is made to see that it is not because of personal righteousness, but through the mercy of God, that the greatest blessings are to be obtained and the true fellowship with God enjoyed.

It was through repentance and complete submission to the will of God that he came into his greatest prosperity. When he humbled himself, "abhorred himself" and "repented in sackcloth and ashes" God exalted him. God's purposes toward His children are always good. "Whom the Lord loveth, He chasteneth"—"chasteneth," not punishes. True, we cannot always understand. Why should we try? Can the child understand the purposes of its parent in discipline? But can it doubt that they are good? Let us trust Him and not seek to understand Him. Judge not the Lord by feeble sense, But trust Him for His grace. Behind a frowning providence He hides a smiling face.

3. The problem of the future life. This question is raised in connection with the life of Job. "If a man die, shall he live again?" is asked, and in

Privilege of Franking Likely to Be Abolished

Postmaster General Inquiring Into Alleged Abuse

THE government postal frank is once more under suspicion. As a result of charges that the congressional franks are being used unlawfully for the mailing of government publications that have been sold to private parties Postmaster General Frank H. Hitchcock has begun a new inquiry into alleged abuse of the franking privilege.

This may not be the final step toward the abolition of the congressional and government free postal frank, but it is at least one of a number of steps that are tending in that direction. Charges that this right to use the mails without charge is badly abused have become so frequent that the leading officials of the government are seriously considering its complete abolition and the giving of definite sums of money to members of congress and to the government departments to pay their postage accounts.

Members of congress persistently deny that the congressional frank is abused. Whenever there is a charge of this kind an investigation is usually demanded, and it usually fails to show any definite cases where family furniture, automobiles or cows are sent in the mail cars under the government free mailing privilege.

The facts are generally admitted, however, that the illegal use of the franks of congressmen by those not entitled to them, the widespread distribution of speeches and campaign documents under the free mailing privilege and the recklessness with which government departments have in the past poured all sorts of merchandise into the United States mails free of postage charge have added a great burden to the cost of maintaining the postal system and have helped materially in creating a postal deficit.

Cause of Heavy Loss.

Former Postmaster General Corteloy figured in 1904 that the free mailing system had caused a loss of $20,000,000 to the post office department. The official figures for 1908, when all the free mail was weighed, show that the congressional franks took $518,355 out of the post office department's income, and the "penalty envelope," under which the government departments send mail, caused a loss of $5,219,661 in the post office department's receipts.

What the cost of franking congressional matter was last year has not yet been made public. It must have been an enormous sum, however, for the campaign committees of both political parties sent out from Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Chicago hundreds of tons of campaign literature, consisting of extracts and speeches from the Congressional Record.

Stories of Abuses.

The stories of fantastic things that congressmen have sent through the mails are as old as the congressional frank itself.

"The old story of the member sending his washing home under a frank and having it sent back to the capital," said former Senator Carter, "appeared in a number of books purporting to give reminiscences of Washington life and affairs. It may have been true in some isolated case, but the post office department has made very radical changes as to franked matter."

It is claimed that within the last few years, however, one western congressman franked his entire law library home from Washington at the end of his term. Another, taking advantage of the privilege accorded a retiring member to use the frank for nine months after his term expires, used the time to flood his old district with campaign material, carry on congressional business for his former constituents and lay all the groundwork for a campaign for re-election against his successor.

Under the penalty envelope everything from a stuffed horse sent by the post office department to the world's fair at Chicago to billiard tables and burglar proof safes sent out by government departments has been carried in the mail cars apparently "postage free," but really paid for by the post office department at the high rates charged by the railroads.

The congressman's frank, which consists of his name written across the corner of the envelope with the initials "M. C." following, is much more restricted in its use than is the "penalty envelope," under which the government departments send mail matter.

The representative or senator has the right to mail out "parts of the Congressional Record," free government seeds or official correspondence in letters weighing not more than two ounces.

The Tillman Incident.

The last public controversy that the post office department had with a member of congress was the now famous Tillman case, in 1909. Senator Tillman had been in the habit of franking his typewriter through the mails to and from his home in South Carolina,

The Present System Helps to Create a Postal Deficit

The machine was owned by the government, and he contended that as government property it was entitled to free transportation in the mails.

The postmaster at Washington held up the typewriter when it came into the Washington office for delivery early in 1909. Senator Tillman declared he would not pay the postage on it, but the Washington postmaster secured legal endorsement of his contention that the full postage would have to be paid before it would be delivered from the office. The decision was based on the principle that a congressional frank does not cover the transportation of merchandise simply because it is government property.

For the one or two instances of this kind that have occurred in late years in the ranks of representatives and senators there have been scores in the government departments.

Billiard Table by Mail.

On one occasion an army post in the west had a billiard table which the war department wanted to transfer to another post at a different point. Instead of being sent by freight at considerable expense to the war department it was put into the mail car under the free mailing privilege, and the postoffice department paid the railroads mail rates for its carriage.

The treasury department at Washington used to distribute iron safes weighing as much as 1,000 pounds each, filing cases, desks, chairs, office devices and other furniture from the Washington repository to all parts of the country through the mail cars. Other departments in Washington sent out furniture, typewriters and similar things. The postoffice department itself transported canceling machines, carpets, lounges and various kinds of furniture.

One of the great abuses of the franking privilege, which it is claimed, has been fairly eradicated now, was practiced for many years by persons apparently in the employ of certain railroad companies. Great quantities of government publications, of no use to any one, would be sent out to distant points at the time that the periodical weighing of the mails was going on.

Wagon loads of these pouches would be sent under the frank of a congressman who knew nothing about the shipment and would be sent to some man who knew nothing of its coming. The weight of this and of the hundreds of other shipments of like character would be credited to the railroads as part of the mail they carried during the weighing period, and for the next few years the government would go on paying the railroads on that basis of weight.

Trick of the Railroads.

One congressman in Michigan is authority for the statement that he received three wagon loads of publications of various kinds at his home, after congress had adjourned, for three years in succession before he found out the system.

An official report recently made in the senate pointed out that thousands of publications are thus sent to libraries.

It is claimed in this official report by a commission of the senate that from 1895 to 1909 there were 1,579,164 useless documents returned to the superintendent of documents at Washington, to be sold as waste paper. On every one of these the government paid the railroads postage charges both ways, because they were mailed as "free matter."

The "Barlow case" has figured in a number of investigations of this abuse of the franking privilege. In that case it was claimed that many sacks of this franked matter were deliberately held up at New Orleans so that they would go over a certain railroad during the mail weighing period.

The use of the congressional frank by the campaign committees is not contrary to law, but there are many members of congress and government authorities who consider it an abuse of the free mailing privilege.

Used In Campaigns.

The Republican and Democratic congressional committees sent out last year under this provision "parts of the Congressional Record" that would have cost them thousands of dollars in postage. Of one pamphlet alone the Republicans printed 3,000,000 copies.

The entire Democratic campaign book was sent out under a congressional frank. The book was made up of "campaign thunder" that had been delivered in congress, but to make it fully frankable Chairman Lloyd of the Democratic committee read to the house of representatives the title, index and subheads of the proposed book. This made it all "part of the Congressional Record."

The Republicans sent out many copies of the "Story of a Tariff" in the same way, under congressional franks. This campaign book was also composed of congressional speeches. Individual speeches were pirated and circulated by hundreds of thousands of copies.

ADVANTAGES OF OUR SELF-RENEWING CERTIFICATES.

1. It is a short time investment, usually for six months, although we write identically the same certificate at a higher rate of interest on TWELVE MONTHS time and is suitable for surplus funds or funds awaiting permanent investment.
2. Either certificate can be renewed from time to time by simply HOLDING THE CERTIFICATE and thus make it a permanent investment.
3. Either relieves the holder from the annoyance of collecting interest and having the certificate renewed at every maturity date. We mail you interest check to your last known address on each maturity.
4. This company will make loans to the face value of the certificate.
5. There is absolutely no speculative value in these certificates and they are not affected by the rise and fall of the security market. THEY ARE ALWAYS WORTH PAR.
6. We claim to pay you on the year certificate the highest rate consistent with absolute safety and permanence of the principal.

In addition to the above, WE PAY INTEREST ON CHECKING ACCOUNTS above a stated limit.

John M. Stone has filed suit on a claim against Samuel L. Innis administrator of the estate of Sanford M. Poston, deceased, demanding $30.75.

A baby girl was born to the wife of Whitelaw Spurrier in Centrilia, Ill., according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Spurrier last evening. It is the seventh granddaughter in the Spurrier family.

A heavy cloud in the south about ten o'clock this morning threatened to bring on a damaging storm in Rushville, but this city escaped with a few drops of rain. At Milroy the effects of the cloud were felt as a steady downpour of rain came about that time. It is by far the most beneficial and hardest rain which the farmers of the southern part of the county have received.

James McDonald and a party of campers who have been enjoying an outing on Flatrock below Moscow, returned to their home in Mays today.

The funeral services of Mrs. Benjamin McFarlan will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Main Street Christian church, conducted by the Rev. Cyrus Yoeum. Friends can call anytime until 2 o'clock tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Allison, of near St. Paul, are living together again in double blessedness. They separated not long ago just a few weeks after their marriage, but did not make public the cause of their disagreement. Whatever it was it has evidently been forgotten as they are now living together in peace.

John Mack and Charles Sorrell were on duty today as extra policemen, being appointed by Mayor Black to help handle the circus crowds.

The funeral services of Mrs. Frances Overton were held this afternoon at the residence of Thomas Overton in East Seventh street. Burial took place in East Hill cemetery.

RECEIVER NAMED FOR DISSELKOEN

Court Appointed Frank B. Ansted, Who Qualified by Giving Bond in Sum of $10,000.

THE TWO STORES ARE CLOSED

A hearing in the matter of the petition for a receiver to take charge of the affairs of John N. Disselkoen was held before Judge Gray Thursday morning, with the result that a receiver, in the person of Frank B. Ansted, was appointed by the court, says the Connersville News. He qualified by giving bond in the sum of $10,000.

The petitioners were represented in court by Wiles & Springer. They are the Central State Bank and the Farmers and Merchants Trust Co., each of which has a suit for judgment, pending against Disselkoen. The latter, who was present at the proceedings in the forenoon, was represented in court by Attorney Perry J. Freeman of Richmond. Tacit objections to the appointment of a receiver were made by him, but they were overbalanced in the mind of the court by the plea for such appointment.

Mr. Ansted, immediately after qualifying as receiver, went to Falmouth and Bentonville and there closed the stores which Disselkoen has lately been conducting. What further action will be taken at present is not known, but the whole affair is in the receiver's hands, and it is probable that a thorough invoice of all stock in the stores will be taken at once.

ENTERTAIN COMPANY.

Mr. and Mrs. George Krammes entertained a company of relatives and friends Sunday at their home west of this city. Those present were Herbert Gilson and family of Spokane, Wash., James Beabout and wife, Catherine Lowden and Ornie Gardner of Manilla, Ben F. Stiers and family of Clarksburg, J. R. Dearinger and family, Otto Krammes and wife of near Rushville, and Zeno Hodge and Leon McDaniel of Posey township and Edna Lowden of Indianapolis.

MUST PAY FOR EXTENSION

An opinion to L. G. Ellingham, secretary of State, written to the attorney-general, is to the effect that a foreign corporation, desiring to extend its corporate rights in this State has to pay a fee of only $5 for the certificate of extension, together with the legal fee for the certified statements desired by the office. The question arose when a St. Louis brewing concern desired to extend its corporate rights in the State.

Clay Smith began his musical career as guitar soloist with the Curtis-Graves Mandolin Club at the World's fair in Chicago, 1893, and since that date has been steadily engaged in concert work. He has appeared as soloist with different clubs and orchestras, and he has made such a thorough study of this unusual instrument that for some time he gave full evening recitals.

Mrs. Alta R. Wells is an accomplished pianist, a graduate of the Chicago Musical College, and has had several years experience in lyceum and concert work. Her piano accompaniments are one of the strong features of the entertainment. In addition to her work as accompanist she performs an important part in the saxophone quartet and bell ringing.

Miss Margaret Puckett received her early training from Miss Marian Newman of Detroit, Mich., with whom she studied three years. Later she studied at the Owensboro College at Owensboro, Kentucky. She has also studied Shakespeare under Alice Williams Brotherton of Cincinnati. Her voice is a mezzo-soprano of beautiful quality and she has studied with some of the most eminent vocal instructors of the country.

Monday the course lectures begin for the week. Monday afternoon, following the musical prelude, at three o'clock, Miss Grace Hemingway will appear in her first "story hour," giving German folklore stories in German costume. Immediately after that Prof. Henrietta Calvin of Purdue University will give her first course lecture and will discuss chafing dish cookery. The evening program will consist of a concert by the Apollo Concert Company.

The course lectures which were such an enjoyable and instructive feature of last year's program and which was an innovation here at that time, will be continued this year. It will be remembered that Prof. Calvin of the domestic science department of Purdue lectured every afternoon during the week at the assembly. The same program will be followed out this year and the lectures will be illustrated.

Miss Grace Hemingway is a unique figure on the Lyceum platform. Her stories of the people of various countries are as entertaining and instructive as they are delightful. She will give some of her stories under the inviting shade trees in the park and some of them will be especially for children. She is on the program every afternoon during the week.
